

I have been in the beautiful country of Guatemala for 42 days and counting!

To say that the experience has been eye opening thus far is almost shameful.

February brought reasons to celebrate. There were birthday cakes eaten and Espanol Final exams taken. More importantly relationships have begun to develop. Ministry is about relationships. You cannot help a place or a person if you are not connected. I have found myself beginning to connect with these children and the people around me through something much stronger than verbal language. Compassion. In the bible when Jesus was "moved" with compassion the miraculous happened. I believe that is true for any one of us. When we are moved with compassion we become capable of miracles.

Llamdo Soy
On February 24th & 25th I was blessed to be able to attend a Sunday School seminar in El Salvador. Me and 300 other passionate people were taught how to engage children, their families and inspire other volunteers. It was absolutely beautiful to see so many people desperate to equip themselves so that more children, more families can experience salvation. The Sunday kids service saw 59 filled and 19 baptized!

Bro. David Roca, Bro. Josh Combs, Bro. Jay Combs, Sis. Amy Sawyer, Sis. Lynne Jewett, Sis. Nellie Long, Me, Sis. Delene Carnely and Sis. Ayana Washington at the Llamado Soy international Sunday School Conference in El Salvador.

Blowing out candles on his 5th.

Super EXCITED!

Sis. Delene Carnely and I after our last Espanol class in Antigua.

Guatemala is teaching me what genuine compassion looks like, what it feels like. For that I believe I will be forever grateful.
