

October Newsletter

by Kaylea Elliott, AIM to Guatemala

The month of October was a busy month, full of activities with the children and helping anywhere needed. In the past two months, I have learned that helping in the foreign field is mainly about being willing and flexible to do whatever is needed whenever it is needed. The past two months have been truly life-changing and I cannot wait to see what my final month will hold in Guatemala.

- In October, the children's school year ended and it was great to see all their accomplishments. For most, this was their first year of school and it was awesome to see how much they have learned!!

- This month was also an exciting month for me personally. I turned 22 and my dad flew down to be with me for the BIG day! We hiked Pacaya, an active volcano here in Guatemala. When we finally reached the top, it was one of the most beautiful sites I have ever seen!

- With the children out of school, we have had more time to do activities with the children. From science experiments to making animals out of food, it's neat to see their eyes light up with each new thing they learn.

- We had the privilege of having two teams come visit us here at H.O.M.E. One team was from Kentucky and the other from Maryland.
- The Team from Kentucky worked at H.O.M.E and painted the inside of one of the houses. We also had the opportunity to go to service with them on Sunday night. To visit a different church and see their worship was an awesome experience! The people of Guatemala are worshippers, the presence of God was there in a mighty way from the first song until the end.
